

Inaugural Class of IAHSI – 2024

Amr Jamal

Prof. Amr Jamal, MD, chairs the Department of Family & Community Medicine at King Saud University and founded its Master of Health Informatics program. With over 100 publications, he leads national digital health transformations, advising on strategies and the adoption of AI and emerging technologies globally. His work with WHO and HIMSS shapes regional and global health informatics policies, emphasizing access and quality in healthcare. He is the founding co-chair and scientific lead of Zimam in Geneva, initiating programs to enhance Digital Health skills across various sectors.