

Class of IAHSI - 2020

Bradley A. Malin

Bradley A. Malin, Ph.D. is Vice Chair for Research in the Department of Biomedical Informatics and Vanderbilt University Medical Center and is a Professor of Biomedical Informatics, Biostatistics, and Computer Science at Vanderbilt University. He is the co-founder and co-director of the Vanderbilt Health Data Science Center, as well as a National Institutes of Health Center of Excellence in Ethical, Legal, and Social Implications Research focused on genomics, electronic health data, and privacy. Among various professional service responsibilities, he is an appointed member of the Technical Anonymisation Group (TAG) of the European Medicines Agency. His complete bio can be found here.