

Class of IAHSI - 2021

Il Kon Kim

Il Kon Kim is a professor at College of IT, Kyungpook National Univ. since 1992. He acquired his Ph.D. in Computer Science specializing in Knowledge-based system from Seoul National University in year 1991.

He was a visiting scholar at Imaging Science and Information Center of Georgetown University Hospital from 1997 to 1998. He was an adjunct professor at College of Medicine, Kyungpook National Univ., from 2001 to 2008.

Moreover, he was the chair of the Korea Mirroring Committee for ISO/TC 215, Health informatics for about 15 years. His expertise includes HL7 V2.x messaging, Clinical Document Architecture, Fast Healthcare Interoperability Resources.

Also, He was the chair of Intelligent Health Information System research center in Kyungpook National University for 15 years. His main research interest is custom-oriented health information system, regarding digital health, personal health record, health information exchange, and etc. Via AI, IoT, and Block-chain technologies, he aims to achieve total care for the elderly and healthy aging.

He is the senior vice chairman of the Smart Health Standards Forum, and is leading the project of "Personalized Digital Health Framework", ISO/TC 215 Health Informatics while conducting Vice Convenour at ISO/TC 215 TF4, Personal Digital Health Informatics.